

Briscoe's New Home

I want to thank all the wonderful folks at Labs4Rescue for all their efforts in finding me my new home; especially those who took special care for a safe trip in bad weather. I remember how nervous I was being the first one off the truck and seeing all those people waiting patiently for our arrival. I was shaking so bad but my new Dad picked me up and carried me to their car for the last leg of a long journey for such little guy. My new Mom sat in the back with me and we soon became good friends as she started hugging me and playing with me.

We arrived safely at my new home to find even more of my new family. They greeted me like I was a long lost member of their family. I soon found out that I was not the only four-legged member in this family. These three furry creatures that made funny hissing sounds also greeted me, I think they are called cats. Then there was this fur ball looking thing with long ears that is kept in a cage, he must have been bad or something to be locked up like that.

They gave me a new red collar and matching leash it looks great against my shiny black coat. They took me outside and there are so many wonderful new smells my nose is on overtime. I think this is a great place for me I can not wait to show my new Mom and Dad how smart and well behaved I can be but for now I will just enjoy all the excitement and attention.

I am sending you some pictures of me in my new home so you all know I made it safely and you did a wonderful job getting me here. Thank you again for everything everyone has done for me I will remember you all.

Do you think any one can see me here? I figure the back of the couch is the best place to keep an eye on things.

Aren't I cute in my own chair?

This chair is a little lumpy but it comes with a heater.

I even have my own basket of toys.

This is one of those cat things this one they call Angel, go figure!

Here is me looking at the one that has been bad they call him Mr. Bunny.

Here I am checking the ingredients nutritional facts with my Mom.

It was a tough day, what can I say.
